DISCOVER MEXICO'S HIDDEN MARINE PARADISE

With its pristine coastlines and vivid sea life, Baja California offers spectacular untamed wilderness. Sail aboard the nimble National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions fleet into the biodiverse waters of the Gulf of California, home to more than a third of the world's marine mammal species. Led by local experts, naturalists and photographers, you'll have thrilling opportunities for up-close encounters with gray whales and their curious calves on panga excursions in Magdalena Bay.

Spend days discovering vibrant marine life as you snorkel among playful sea lions off the island of Los Islotes or watch a pod of dolphins zip by your Zodiac. Then head ashore to hike amid shifting sand dunes and fascinating flora, from lush mesquite trees to monumental cardón cacti.

Discover this awe-inspiring region—blissfully remote yet close to home.
